Multi-agency collaboration is critical for community-wide impact . . .

To improve system outcomes and the life-changing results for service recipients

To improve relationships with community leaders, funders, and other stakeholders

To make the best use of the web of resources available in your community

To gain purpose and clarity of mission for the community

To increase community health through better communication, listening, and learning from one another

The resources needed for change emerge out of collaborative hope!

Community Development & Collaboration . . . Making an Impact

If your organization is offering services for a targeted population of people in the community, you want to make the most impact possible. With limited dollars to fight poverty and homelessness, ensure quality primary and mental health care, improve child care, family support, and educational resources . . . community collaboration across agencies, faith-based organizations and advocacy groups is essential.

The best place to begin . . .

- Build a team of local stakeholders
- Assess community-wide assets and resources
- Listen to service recipients and direct service providers
- Uncover collaborative opportunities
- Define the Desired Results

Community change happens when people and organizations come together to make a difference!

A Productive Partnership . . .

GTM consultants work in partnership with communities, service recipients, service providers, local officials, and consumer advocates to make certain results reflect the needs of all stakeholders. Cookie-cutter solutions are replaced by uniquely designed assessments that engage the right people and reveal opportunities for creative strategies and high impact.

The GTM partnership begins with a no-obligation meeting followed by written recommendations, costs, and time lines.

A Proven Track Record . . .

Beth Bordeaux, Founder and President of GTM Evaluation & Planning, Inc. has helped a number of communities assess, define and implement opportunities for systems change. See our website for detailed project descriptions ~ www.gtmeval.com or call GTM at 919-612-2168 to schedule an introductory meeting.

“Through a tumultuous time, Beth Bordeaux provided clear and dynamic leadership. She was responsible for developing our strategic planning process which included the development of processes for receiving input from a wide range of community stakeholder groups. This required exquisite facilitation skills to weave the diverse concerns and needs of various interest groups into a cohesive plan that had integrity. Beth was well respected by all participants in this process.”
